Grace and Mercy in Her Wild Hair Selected Poems to the Mother Goddess Great Eastern Book Company The Mercy Poems Knopf *Philip Levine's new collection of poems (his first since The Simple Truth was awarded the Pulitzer Prize) is a book of journeys: the necessary ones that each of us takes from innocence to experience, from youth to age, from confusion to clarity, from sanity to madness and back again, from life to death, and occasionally from defeat to triumph. The book's mood is best captured in the closing lines of the title poem, which takes its name from the ship that brought the poet's mother to America: A nine-year-old girl travels all night by train with one suitcase and an orange. She learns that mercy is something you can eat again and again while the juice spills over your chin, you can wipe it away with the back of your hands and you can never get enough.* Mercy's Madhouse Poems Trafford Publishing *One hallmark of a serious religious sensibility is its relationship with the profane world. The challenge for a poet is to make both aspects truly convincing. The poet aims for poems where spirit acknowledges the ripe miseries of the gambling flesh and the flesh sings of spirit's exacting grace. William Byers is such a poet. He knows the world with the eyes of the military man who has stared at nuclear apocalypse and crusted vomit on a bar top and he knows the world with the hungry soul of one who has craved a greater love. His poems are deeply moving as they unsparingly show how we fall and how we sometimes rise, how we stutter and how we find the words that are astonishingly apt. This book is full of many such words in many careful forms. William Byers is a very accomplished American poet. Mastery and Mercy A Study of Two Religious Poems Channels of Mercy Divine Mercy in Poetry Christian Faith Publishing, Inc. *God is mercy itself! Maureen McHeffey takes us on an artful and delightful journey with a passage from Sacred Scripture on one end and a quote from St. Faustina's Diary on the other. Each poem is situated in between as a beautiful lyric that carries us progressively deeper into the well of God's mercy. Read on. You will be richly rewarded! --Monsignor Joseph Chapel Adjunct Professor of Moral Theology, Seton Hall University Drawing on Scripture and the Diary of St. Faustina, these inspiring poems lead us on a quiet path where we may be drawn into grateful prayer, as we meditate on God's merciful and lavish love for us. --Dianne M. Traflet, JD, STD Associate Dean, Immaculate Conception Seminary School of Theology Author, St. Edith Stein: A Spiritual Portrait Like swine over a cliffside Towards their own death they run In a stampede to their mortality In this rat race of mankind Towards pride Towards pleasure Towards never enough As the devil stands by And delights in his works. And the Lord looks on And He calls them and calls them But so few turn their heads So very few leave the herd. But those who do find peace They find healing and comfort The weary find rest Under His watchful Eye --an excerpt taken from "The Herd" Channels of Mercy: Divine Mercy in Poetry is the author's debut collection of poetry written about God's gift of Divine Mercy, the many ways in which He desires to give us His mercy, and the opposition we face to receive His mercy. Each poem is paired with scripture and quotes from the Diary of St. Faustina so as to provide an illustrative glimpse into the mystery of Divine Mercy. The Seven Works of Mercy; and Other Poems ... Ways of Mercy The Poetry of Allison Grayhurst "Allison Grayhurst's poetic prose is insightful, enwrapping, illuminating and brutally truthful. It probes the nature of the human spirit, relationships, spirituality and God. It is sung as the clearest song is sung within a cathedral by choir. It is whispered as faintly as a heartbroken goodbye. It is alive with the life of a thousand birds in flight within the first glint of morning sun. It is as solemn as the sad-sung ballad of a noble death. Read at your peril. You will never look at this world in quite the same way again. Your eye will instinctively search the sky for eagles and scan the dark earth for the slightest movement of smallest ant, your heart will reach for tall mountains, bathe in the most intimate of passions and in the grain and grit of our earth. Such is Allison Grayhurst. Such is her poetry. THE RIVER IS BLIND is a must-read. " Eric M. Vogt, poet and author."When I read Allison Grayhurst's poetry, I am compelled by the intensity and strength of her spirituality. Her personal experience of God drives her poetry. With honesty and vulnerability, she fleshes out the profound mystery of knowing at once both the beauty and terror of God's love, both freedom and obedience, deep joy and sorrow, both being deeply rooted in but also apart from the world, and lastly, both life and death. Her poems undulate through these paradoxes with much feeling and often leave me breathless, shaken. Allison Grayhurst's poems are both beautiful and difficult to behold," Anna Mark, poet and teacher."Allison Grayhurst's poetry combines the depth and dark intensity of Sylvia Plath, the layered complex imagery of Dylan Thomas and the philosophical insights of Soren Kierkegaard, taking the reader on a fearless journey through the human condition, delving with honesty into death, grief, loss, faith, commitment, motherhood, and erotic love. Grayhurst intertwines a potent spirituality throughout her work so that each poem is not simply a statement or observation, but a revelation that demands the reader's personal involvement. Grayhurst's poetic genius is profound and evident. Her voice is uniquely authentic, undeniable in its dignified vulnerability as it is in its significance," Kyp Harness, singer/songwriter, author."Grayhurst's poetry is a translucent, ethereal dream in which words push through the fog, always searching, struggling, and reaching for the powerful soul at its heart. Her work is vibrant and shockingly original," Beach Holme Publishers."Allison Grayhurst poetry has a tribal and timeless feeling, reminiscent of the Biblical commentary in Ecclesiastes," Cristina Deptula, editor of Synchronized Chaos."Allison Grayhurst's poetry appears visceral, not for the faint of heart, and moves forward with a dynamism, with a frenetic pulse. If you seek the truth, the physical blood and bones, then, by all means, open the world into which we were all born," Anne Burke, poet, regional representative for Alberta on the League of Canadian Poets' Council, and chair of the Feminist Caucus."Grayhurst's rapturous outpouring of imagery makes her poems easily enjoyable ... Like a sear the poet seeks to fathom sensual and spiritual experience through the images of a dream." Canadian Literature. At the Mercy Poems Under the Mercy The Poems of Pete Hollingsworth The Condemned The Mercy of God; Two Poems of Crisis (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from *The Condemned: The Mercy of God; Two Poems of Crisis And the last moment come that we must tot The balance up, for and against the world, That we should die to pains and hatreds, pass Clean out of this dark vault of ruined hopes. There's a deep kindness in this hurried death Which takes us by the throat and flings us out Where no remembrance is of traitor passion, And all's smoothed like a level lawn at night, Where we nor joy nor trouble, but lie still As water draining darkly through the earth. So little love is there to hold me back, So frail a thread I shall not feel it snap When the rope pulls taut and I am left to dangle, So little love, O God, and so much hate To bid me plunge blindfold from its lurid glare Into the deepest pit, to burn away In a livid dusk of lime. Yet I would write Somewhat before I die. It is not just My name should bear the crOp of weedy lies Men's tongues sow broadcast in a shallow soil. They judge but ill who judge not from the heart, And none have known my heart, save one perhaps, Who broke it in her hands as worthless ware. poetry is that no one reads it. Poetry, quite frankly, sucks --or at least that's what we've been led to believe. I have found that, if we have a little fun (but serious fun) picking at postmodern poets, who are read by no one but poor college English majors (No, the professors don't read it!), and try not to take ourselves too seriously, we can have a blast. Now, if you don't get the point of this book, you are probably a blooming idiot and you've got no business thinking about reading poetry. If you're a hypocritical, fundamentalist-type Christian, you might want to mosey on over to the Christian reading section. We discuss some pretty heavy religious issues in this book. If you go, you're a blooming idiot, too. If you buy this book and burn it, you'll fry in Hell. I'll see you as I'm passing through. Gentle Readers, I love each and every one of you as individuals. Buy this book. Don't p*ss me off! Never be yours truly, William Joy

Bragi Mercy ; a poem in two cantos Pictures of Mercy Selected Poems Stride Publications Cold Angel of Mercy Poems

"Delicate, detailed, and firm all at once. Amy Randolph's poems in Cold Angel of Mercy are anything but cold. They are loving celebrations of what it means to live on this side of heaven. She is an exquisite poet." --Liz Rosenberg "In an age of poems all too easily written and all too frequently published, Amy Randolph's poems are those rarest of things: works of art filled with tact, restraint, and deep human feeling seasoned by experience and years. Filled with 'grief and unfolding, ' yet open to all that arrives, 'lonely in its unexpectedness, ' her poems are as vigilant as the regrets she herself observes, as heartfelt as that yearning for God she so movingly inhabits and describes. Here is a poet who knows all too well that 'you don't have to go far to be damaged, ' but who also knows the distance one does have to go--and the attention that needs to be paid, the love given--to be redeemed." --Michael Blumenthal

Venus and Adonis Mercy A Poem Mercy Róisín Kelly's Mercy is an attempt to reconcile her Irish Catholic background with her pagan heritage, transcending the limits of a world in which everything is connected. Both intimate and political, this powerful debut collection combines a passionate exploration of self with an awestruck confrontation of wilderness. Róisín Kelly lives in Cork. Earth, Mercy Poems LSU Press In her new collection, Earth, Mercy, Mary Rose O'Reilley sifts through the debris of human habitation -- pink thong sandals, curlers, broken televisions -- looking for a kind of junkyard grace: "Holiness enters again / turquoise fins, and the Cessna's carapace / lifts on its wind." The first poem, "Genesis," locates the reader in Edenic time, "in that humid and green / arrival," while the last, "Watching the End of the World from Hovland, Minnesota," gives nature a final word: "Morels on goat prairie gloat / in their blue light. Spruce / speaking of green on green." Between these points, any poem offers a threshold over which something unexpected may pass -- a ghost, an angel, or the yap of an insouciant dog alerting us to apocalypse. Against all that threatens our survival, Earth, Mercy asserts the beauty of our poignantly sensual life. The Seven Works of Mercy; and Other Poems. By S. W. Edited by C. L. Courtney Book of Mercy Canongate Books The poems in Book of Mercy brim with praise, despair, anger, doubt and trust. Speaking from the heart of the modern world, yet in tones that resonate with an older devotional tradition, these verses give voice to our deepest, most powerful intuitions. Internationally celebrated for his writing and his music, Leonard Cohen is revered as one of the greatest writers, performers, and most consistently daring artists of the last hundred years. Mercy: a poem: wherein the attribute is treated as relating to God, our neighbour, and ourselves. In two parts The Mercy Seat Collected & New Poems, 1967-2001 A collection of poems by twentieth-century American poet Norman Dubie. The Quality of Mercy Lulu.com JAMES CLARKE has authored many volumes of poetry that explore his role as a judge, as a father, as a husband, and as a man of conscience in the world. These books have earned him a reputation for insight into the nature of human judgment and mercy, forgiveness and responsibility. THE QUALITY OF MERCY is the second of Clarke's more intimate and revealing collections, following WINTER WITH FLOWERS, that responds to questions of family and spirituality and legacy. Its poetry is deft and mature, sensitive and rich, the gift of a father to his family. La Belle Dame qui eust mercy and Le Dialogue d'amoureux et de sa dame A Critical Edition and English Translation of Two Anonymous Late-Medieval French Amorous Debate Poems MHRA La Belle Dame qui eust mercy and Le Dialogue d'amoureux et de sa dame are two late-medieval poems in which a courtly gentleman and lady debate the merits of his pleas for her affections. In both cases, the lady is recalcitrant, dismissing her suitor's lovesickness as a trifle, denying that she ever gave any sign of encouragement, and wishing to protect her reputation. The lady in Le Dialogue never capitulates; in contrast, the Belle Dame ends by agreeing to her lover's suit and imagining a future in which they will joyfully live together. Both poems merit serious attention for their kinship with Alain Chartier's La Belle Dame sans mercy (1424) and other poems in the so-called "Belle Dame" cycle. Their presence in numerous fifteenth- and sixteenth-century manuscript and printed collections attests to their appeal in their day. Equally as significant is their unusual bipartite stanzaic structure, suggesting amalgamation of separate poems and/or continuations of existing poems. Such an anomaly complicates attribution of authorship and dating, but close study of La Belle Dame qui eust mercy and Le Dialogue d'amoureux et de sa dame can only enhance our understanding of the process(es) of poetic composition, as well as the mise en page and reception of literary works, in the late Middle Ages. Mercy & Truth. Containing Eight Original Poems on Important Themes Dialogue Between Justice and Mercy, with Other Poems Singing the Body of God The Hymns of Vedantadesika in Their South Indian Tradition Oxford University Press on Demand 'Singing the Body of God' is a study of the devotional poetry of the 14th-century poet-philosopher Vedāntadeśika, one of the most influential figures in the Hindu tradition of Sri-Vaishnavism. Mountains of Mercy Poems for Today Poem for Mercy at the Winter Solstice Book of Longing Penguin UK Book of Longing is Leonard Cohen's first book of new poetry since Book of Mercy was published two decades ago. It collects Cohen's poetry written between the 1980s and the present, and also includes his wonderfully witty and sensuous illustrations, including numerous playful self-portraits. The illustrations interact with, and complement, the poetry in unexpected and fascinating ways. Book of Longing demonstrates the range and depth of Cohen's work, revealing an extraordinary gift of language and visual art that speak with rare clarity, passion and timelessness. The Murderous Sky Poetry. Women's Studies. In THE MURDEROUS SKY Rosemary Daniell confronts with searing honesty and stunning poetry the pain of her daughter's addiction and her son's schizophrenia. Winner of the William Faulkner-William Wisdom Award, this is a book that haunts. As Gordon Walmsley says, "It took courage to write these poems, and it takes courage to read them." Olio With ambitious manipulations of poetic forms, Jess presents the sweat and story behind America's blues, worksongs and church hymns." Mercy's Madhouse New Poems and Contextual Essay on Creative Writing as Moral Inquiry A collection of thirty-eight original poems is divided into three sections. The first part concerns the poet's relationships to his own family and other poets whose work influenced him. The middle section contains poems based on the experience of the author over a twenty-year career as a submariner during the cold war, and the imagined experience of other warriors during and after the Second World War. The final poems seek spiritual reconciliation with experience. The poems address the pain of contact with machines of great destructive power, contact with addictive substances, and contact with the emotionally flat obligations of duty and honor. Over the whole of this work the idea of redemption by surrender and love hovers. The machines like the substances are very compelling, and these poems struggle with the growing desperation felt as loss mounts upon loss. One by one the dreams of youth must be sacrificed to the real necessity of getting by today. The possibility of ultimate loneliness haunts this work. It is the idea that somehow things have gone too far, and, like previous American generations, this one too might pass away without fully embracing its own life. A contextual essay proposes that: Creative writing acts as moral inquiry when it is acting toward recovery, through imagination by means of language, of a reality which can be believed and shared. The essay examines both the personal context and the literary context of the poems in the creative section. Influence and style are discussed. Relations, in poetry, between form and content are examined. The formal aesthetic challenges, addressed by the creative work, are explored. How does the relation between memory and desire in a poem relate to its music, and make believable its narrative or story? How does the choice of metaphors and images help in sharing the inward or outward concern of the poet? Poetry and poets from Dante to today, and critics from Aristotle to post-moderns, are examined in light of these challenges. A Masque of Mercy Poetic drama. The Quality of Mercy The Gentler Virtues in Greek Literature The Trials of Alain Chartier's Belle Dame Sans Mercy The Poems in Their Cyclical and Manuscript Context A Daily Dose of Mercy Hachette UK 'And what does the LORD require of you? To act justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with your God.' Micah 6:8 NIV This book contains 365 short daily devotions on the theme of mercy. Each day's reading will take about one minute to read, and is accompanied by a short scripture passage and a gentle tug on your heart to be the light of mercy in someone's life each day, because a merciful heart looks beyond its own difficulties and encourages others. Written by Don Stephens, bestselling author of Ships of Mercy, and founder of the charity Mercy Ships which offers free surgical care to people in desperate need in Africa, these daily devotional readings are inspired by the very best stories from the work of the people who volunteer on the ship. But each day's reflection points to the need for mercy everywhere... not just across the ocean, but down the street, next door, and even in our very own homes.
